OPEN GRAVE WAS BOY'S HIDING PLACE

He Ran to Cemetery When Chased by Policeman and Dropped Out of Sight—Held for Robbery.

Harry Adams, twelve years old, sought an open grave as a hiding place when chased by a policeman who was chasing him.

He lives at No. 305 Palmetto street, Brooklyn, a neighborhood in which several minor burglaries have been committed recently.

The police blamed boys for these and when Patrolman McCaffrey saw young Adams walking along Evergreen avenue before dawn to-day, he followed. The boy ran, making his way straight to the old Union Cemetery, which has been abandoned.

The policeman, who is a good sprinter, was close after him, but when he reached the cemetery the boy had disappeared, he dropping into a grave from which the coffin had been removed.

McCaffrey hid behind a tree to take observations, and soon saw a head bob up from the grave.

He pulled the boy out, but had to shake the fight out of him, young Adams kicking and biting at a lively rate.

In the Ewen Street Court today the policeman said that the boy had confessed to robbing the grocery store of Henry Smith, at No. 146 New York avenue.

Two other boys, William Abrams, fifteen years old, and John Hoffman, eleven, who live in Blacker street, implicated by him, were arrested. All three were held.

TOO MUCH FOR MAGISTRATE.

Question of Verdict Left to Special Sessions Judge.

Mrs. Laura Wood of No. 80 East Twenty-third street, appeared in York County Court today with her husband, who was charged with assault against Mrs. John H. Wood, of No. 120 East Twenty-third street.

Mrs. Wood said she had been hit on the head and face by her husband, and that she had been taken to the hospital.

The judge said he would leave the case to the jury.
